

Work Spaces in a Green Community for $600 a month! David Brower Center Suite 280

Even if you have a small organization, now you can afford work space in a LEED Platinum building: the David Brower Center in downtown Berkeley! You can be part of the Sustainable Enterprise Cluster, a grouping of small companies, organizations and consultants involved with environmental and social sustainability. The Sustainable Enterprise Cluster was created by the Institute for Environmental Entrepreneurship, which continues to manage it.

Participants share space where they can interact, learn from each other, and benefit from the active community of 30 organizations in the Brower Center.

Rental spaces are $600/month. Workspaces are grouped along the walls, to maximize shared space with movable furniture. High speed Wifi, and free use of a black and white laser printer is included, along with access to color printing/copying. Cluster members have use of a conference room and access to the Brower Center's tremendous amenities. For more information see www.browercenter.org, and www.enviroinstitute.org.

Spaces in the Cluster are periodically available, so we maintain a waiting list of interested parties. To apply for a space in the Cluster, please answer our brief questions below and reply to info@enviroinstitute.org. We look forward to receiving your application. Thanks!

To Apply for Space

The Cluster houses individuals and organizations representing the elements of the Triple Bottom Line (to some this is finance, environment and social equity, to others People, Planet, Prosperity). The purpose of the co-location is to challenge, complement and augment each other.

Please give information about the following -

Name of your organization or work:

Contact person and contact information:

How many workspaces at $600/month would you like?

How do your activities fit with environmental and social sustainability?
